Cover Up Unsightly Walls

All the old and discarded wall paper can be quickly covered up with large double panels of Beaver Board. You can't tell where the new paper begins and the old ends if it, you'll never have the job to do again. Once up Beaver Board is also a good material for beautifully decorated walls and ceilings.

We have some very instructive literature that's yours for the asking.

The concert and dance, given by the U.P.A. and W.M. on March 15th, proved a highly successful affair. The programme was good, the selections rendered by the visiting talents well received and encouraged, and the younger and old were well pleased with the evening's enjoyment.

Tornadoes Sweep Many States.

NEARLY TWO HUNDRED
ARE DEAD

Chicago, March 28.—Tornadoes that struck in a dozen states today caused a death list that may pass three score, caused property damage reaching many millions of dollars and caused many with fire and railway service in widespread districts. The greatest damage was done in Chicago suburbs and Elgin, where the known death list was 100, and the number of other persons were missing.

Atlanta reported that the death list in Georgia and Alabama was at least 50. Apparently there were more deaths in the states bordering northward into Illinois and dying out on the shores of Lake Michigan, just north of Chicago, one striking in Georgia and Alabama, another in Indiana and passing into Ohio and Michigan.

Chicago, March 29.—The death list of the Palm Sunday tornadoes that swept sections of eight states total was 100.

Telegraph and telephone service with many isolated communities in the middle west had only been partly restored tonight and indications were that the toll of death and destruction would be augmented.

The known dead in six central western states numbered 105, while 55 were listed in Georgia and Alabama. The property lost in the Chicago area alone was estimated at $5,000,000, while in the other states affected the material loss was large. Michigan, Illinois, suffered the greatest property loss, the damage there being $1,000,000.

Illinois is the hardest hit of the central states with 30 dead, more than 1000 injured and 2000 made homeless.

Indiana reported 35 fatalities and Ohio 26. Eleven were killed in Michigan and one each in Wisconsin and Missouri.

Although somewhat weak he is doing as well as can be expected.

Dr. Scott has been appointed

Hans Rohrer and family are

J. Wyman moved his family to Calgary this week, where they will stay here they have made many friends, and Mrs Wyman will be missed by the ladies of our town.

May they have the best of luck in their new home.

The Editor was called to Edmonton the other day to attend a meeting of newspapermen and others, in order to make preliminary arrangements for the visit of the British Empire Press, which is meeting in Ottawa this summer, and will thereafter make a tour of the Dominion. They will be in Edmonton about the first of Sept., this will be one of the largest and most influential gatherings of men and women from overseas to visit Canada. It is expected that some 300 delegates from all parts of the Empire will be present, and of course the benefits from a publicity out alone will be great.

Mrs John Purnell and Miss P.
Thorn have each won a car in the Ballett contest. Mrs Purnell has earned the first prize for her district, while Miss Thorn receives a Ford. With six cars coming to Ponoka in as many years through Albertan and Ballett contests, Ponoka is anything but slow. With such a supply of daily newspapers arriving at the post-office twice a day the work has become very heavy, and the wickets remain closed for a lengthy period after each train. The worst feature is that one half of the papers are not collected for another once a week, and in many cases not even with the result that congestion has become acute, and of course the public become impatient through having to wait.

THE COW PUNCHER

BY ROBERT J. C. STEAD

Copyright, Canada, 1918, By The Musson Book Co. Ltd., Toronto. Printed By Special Arrangement.

"If you please," said the boy, "excuse me, but you are Mr. Elden, aren't you?"

"Yes, I am. Will you do any way?" The woman timidly asked. "You will wonder at me coming to you, but I am from the country, and I am not used to city ways."

"I expected it," said Dave, with a smile. "You knocked——" He paused.

"Yes?"

"Like a country girl," he said, half-laughing.

She blushed again. "Well, I can't," she confessed. "I got off the train a short time ago. My aunt was to meet me at the station, but she has not come in the street—I must have missed her. And I saw your name on the sign, so I just thought I'd ask if you wouldn't——showing me to this address."

Dave invited her into the office. There she produced a torn piece of paper with "Why, that's just a few blocks," said Dave. "I'll walk with you." At that moment there was another timid knock on the door. He opened it. A girl of eight or ten years stood outside.

"Can I come in?" the lad ventured. "Of course you can. What is it, son?"

The lad looked shabby about the office. It was evident he was impressed with its magnificence. Suddenly he stopped, and, discarding a shaggy shock of brown hair,

"Are you Mr. Elden? That sells lots?"

"Well, if I knew your father's name, perhaps I could tell you. Who is he?"

"He's Mr. Merton. I've his son. And he said to me, before he got so far away, 'Don't you know there's a man in this city, and that's Mr. Elden?' Is that you, Mr. Elden?"

"I don't know him. I don't want such a distinction. I remember you, rather, very well. Did he send you?"

"No, he's too sick. He doesn't know anything now. His voice was thick, and he stopped and swallowed. 'And then I remembered what he said about me,' said Mr. Elden.

"You say your father is very sick?"

"Yes, he's been having a doctor—a nurse."

"No sir. We haven't any money. My dad spent it all for the lots, that he bought from you."

Dave winced. "Then, turning to the young girl, 'What's the most urgent case than yours? I'll call a taxi to take you to your address,' he said, and, with a low laugh, went out in a ribald laugh. She had seated herself on a desk, and was weeping.

"It's all off," she said. "Say, Dave, you couldn't lose it in this town. Well, all the better. I'm rather glad I broke down on this job. I'd have to give it over if I hadn't been for the kid. The fact is, Dave," she continued, "I was never going to demand you. I wasn't fair fighting when I didn't like, but money has been mighty low, and I wonder—how much you'd give to know who sent me?"

Dave pulled some bills from his pocket and held them before her. She took them from his hand.

"Concord," she said.

"Concord," he said. "The low-down dog! There's more in that than appears."

"Sure there is," she said. "There's another woman. There always is!"

A drawer he took a revolver, toweled it in a moment in his hands, broke it, and dropped the cartridges and bullet in his pocket.

The girl watched him with friendly interest. "I'm going to Granat," he said, "if Concord turns up missing. I won't know a thing—nothing at all."

For a moment he stood irresolute. He could only guess what Concord's dad had been, but that it had been a dabbler in the law, and that he was concerned. Irene, he had no doubt, was to immediately confront Concord, and deal with him as the occasion might require. But his eyes fell on the boy, and he saw his brown hair and wistful, half-frightened eyes.

"I'll go with you first," he said with quick decision. Then to the girl, "I guess I must turn you out, but this is the last time."

"That's all right," she said. "Sudden there was a little catch in her voice. "I'm not your first, Irene."

He shot a sharp glance at her. Her face was laughing. "You're too decent for me," he said.

"Thanks, Dave," she answered, and saw her eyes glister. "That helps me, but I don't know where he is. I was into the street."

"All right, son," said Dave, taking up his coat. "I'll go with you. What's your name—your first name?"

"Charles."

The boy mentioned a distant subdivision.

"The boy is out, isn't he? Well, we'll take the car. We'll run right out and see what is to be done. I guess I'd better call a doctor once."

He went to the telephone and gave some directions. Then he and his boy walked to the garage, and in a few moments were hurrying along the by-street into the country. Dave had already made up his mind to errand of mercy, and his rage at Concord, if not forgotten, was temporarily suppressed by the boy's words. He chatted with the boy as he drove.

"You go to school?"

"No, sir. Father has been too sick."

"Of course, this is holidays, and he says he'll be all right then."

"I'm not——" (Continued.)

Meat Exports From Canada

British Government Will All Burden Supplies of Canadian

It is expected that exports of meats from Canada will continue to follow the normal demand of the past few months, according to a statement officially made by the Minister and Development Council of Canada, Meat Packers. The press message from Chicago that owing to the adverse exchange, meat exports from the U.S.A. had ceased, was not true, as the record of a decided drop in prices of hams as a result of changed conditions took place in both countries last fall, and trade for several months has been on the lower basis. The exchange situation between London and Canada is more favorable than that between the United States, and Canadian livestock farmers and breeders may be reassured that our exports will continue so far as can be foreseen, at about the present prices.

There is no cause for alarm in the British Empire will be made to insure a supply of meat for the rest of the year, and that they will be sent to us as soon as possible after each consignment is received.

The proven ore body in the mine is twenty million tons, worth 180 million dollars, which will make it the greatest yielding copper mine in the continent, states the Regina Post.

There is a significant paragraph in an editorial discussion of Britain's new colonial acquisitions in the New World. In the colony over which the British flag is raised justice and domestic peace are assured. In the colony which flies the British flag trade progresses. Development of natural resources, encouragement of industrial fostering of industry, etc., are trades; these are cardinal principles of British colonial policy. Their fruit is honest profit in which all the Empire shares.

"It is eminently true, and the extraordinary difference between Germany's coercive methods and those of the greatest and most beneficial colonizing power the world has ever seen, that before the time of Hitler, Germany had voted three against one against the advance of experiments to a large degree; her timber resources were vanishing, and Canada's position was indeed alarming. An effort was made to stop it, but it was not 'not mocked.'

They were passing through a settlement of 10,000 people in the starlight and by occasional yellow-flame from their windows. Before him the road was dark, and the boy at last stopped. The upper hinge of the door was broken, and a feeble light shone through the hole, where it was fastened outward. Charlie pulled the door open, and Dave entered, then he ran the car a little to the side, and then he got out, switched on the switch, and walked on the way.

"Frosty lonely out here, but I'm not short of oil," he said.

Investigation proved him to be right, and the car was over the street, had collapsed, and was slowly dragging amid its own wreckage.

He was getting muddied for his pains.

Then he ran the car a little to the side, and then he got out, switched on the switch, and walked on the way.

Lively Debate In Commons on Franchise Bill

Ottawa.—Following an afternoon of keen debating in the house of commons, the franchise bill received a second reading and has been started on its more or less way through committee.

Mr. H. E. Meighen, on resuming the debate on second reading, stated the government's position on the disqualification clauses, particularly in regard to those based on naturalized aliens of enemy origin.

These are the clauses which have aroused the keenest criticism throughout. Mr. E. E. Euler, North Waterlow, claimed on Thursday night that they would discriminate against German birth, married to naturally born citizens resident in Canada for many years—and numbers of the soldiers who have fought for the allies.

Taking up this point especially, Mr. Meighen argued that the intent of the clauses was not to discriminate and long time residents as Mr. Euler had instanced. The intent was to establish as far as the right was concerned between the persons naturalized by persons of their parents and the person naturalized by the opinion of law, such, for instance, as by marriage with a British subject.

"It is inconceivable," Mr. Meighen declared, and his words were applauded by the house, "that any government would wish to grant the franchise to a man who came to the country in 1911, became naturalized through the naturalization of his parents, and at the same time have been forty or fifty years old and have enjoyed the right of vote."

When the bill was in committee, therefore the government would have an amendment to submit which would meet the main objections raised by Mr. Euler.

Opposition critics made merry over some of the "anomalies" of the bill. Mr. Jacobs, George Etienne Cartier, was satirical over exceptions made in disqualifying clauses in favor of persons born "on the continent of North America." "Why so?" argued Mr. Jacobs, "why such provisions would place the talented French woman or Belgian, at a disadvantage as compared with the full-blooded negro of San Domingo, the daughter of the Mexican, and greater and the mulatto of Germany?"

"If the late Duchess of Connaught were alive," Mr. Jacobs scoffingly continued, "she would have been a member of the house of commons, and that he had been politically benefited in Germany from a vigorous policy toward England."

Volney western views, Mr. White, Victoria, called the bill "a regulation to keep the government in power, which will not keep in power by any other means."

"Such a bill," he said, "was worthy of Mexico."

On the other hand, Mr. Foster, East York, took a stand which is understood to find considerable favor among the supporters of the franchise. Mr. Foster would have the bill go as it is, as they would disfranchise slackers, allies, enemies and deserters.

Otherwise plain proceedings in committee were broken by a sharp, short battle over the clause forbidding companies, not incorporated for political purposes, to contribute to campaign funds.

The strings were many, seven thousand in all, of those who had been born of parents of two years old. They are the poorest English stock, and while they are being sent to Canada primarily for breeding purposes it is anticipated of some of them will be raced around the western Canada fair circuits this year.

Mr. Maharg, Maple Creek, led with a demand if it meant that groups of individuals could band themselves together to assist in an election campaign.

"It is the same," the solicitor-general agreed.

"I think that is the practical effect."

Mr. Maharg was again on his feet.

"Then," he exclaimed, "to groups of labor men, retired soldiers, or others who are not in the political party."

Mr. Maharg warmly retorted. And on the suggestion of the solicitor-general the committee proceeded with less contentious clauses of favor of per-

Urge Energetic Steps To Enforce Treaty

Andre Tardieu Says France Has Been Let Down

Paris.—An immediate meeting of allied leaders to decide upon energetic steps to insure enforcement of the treaty of Versailles was urged by Andre Tardieu, former commander of French-American relations, in an interview here.

"The treaty already appears to have been violated as much as any treaty could be," Tardieu said. "It is urged that the most immediate steps to be taken are immediate drastic steps."

Enforcement of the strict practice of armistice has been left to France, Tardieu said, and France's position is probably weakened by the movement of the troops to increase rapidly, until the allies decide upon immediate drastic steps at once.

G.W.V. Will Make Request For Cash Gratuity

Montreal.—After two days of discussion, which at times became acrimonious, at the annual general meeting of the Great War Veterans' Association of Canada, the fourth annual convention here, agreed on and adopted a definite bonus plan which fixes a maximum of $2,500 and a minimum of $1,000 for each member and payable in 10 per cent of the Canadian forces.

The cash re-establishment bonus is based on their entitlement to one additional $1 per day for the total period of their enlistment to men who have seen service on a belligerent front.

It is also asked that dependents of fallen soldiers or their beneficiaries should receive equitable compensation.

In a form of a lump sum, cash bonus, to be less than the amount the soldier would have received had he returned at the date of the armistice.

Finally, the government is asked to make a special arrangement for the native organ and comatose of the blood.

Urge said back up to shield the country in any way. He thought that the basis of one dollar per day for a man who served on a belligerent front was a very conservative one.

This can be avoided by stern action, and because of the tone of any one to get Anurie (anti-social) for fifty cents, at almost any time.

Will Keep Down Lumber Prices

Manufacturers Will Do Everything Possible to Prevent Any New Advance

Calgary.—That there will be no further increase in the price of lumber if the manufacturers can possibly help it, is the unanimous view of the executive of the Mountain Lumbermen's Association, today. Mr. Poole said that this decision had been arrived at, notwithstanding the increased cost of production.

The manufacturers can control the situation the price of lumber will certainly not further advance," he definitely stated. Another master which occupied considerable time of the meeting was the question of the terms of fact for forest protection by the Canadian Board of Commissioners, covering 1919 operations. These will be presented to the board in due course.

Mr. Poole stated that these figures will prove conclusively that the manufacturers were not in the "profiteering" class.

Thoroughbreds From Royal Windsor Stable

Prince of Wales May Have Horses On Western Trails

Saskatoon.—The Prince of Wales' thoroughbred race horses from Windsor stables, England, will probably be seen on the western Canadian race tracks during the big summer fair this year.

Carlyle, manager of the Alberta race track, while the Royal Windsor purchased on his Canadian tour last summer, has gone east to superintend the unloading of the horses, which are expected to arrive from the old country in May or June.

The strong nine-year-old horses, of medium and of horses, of which there are the poorest English stock, and while they are being sent to Canada primarily for breeding purposes it is anticipated of some of them will be raced around the western Canada fair circuits this year.

Otherwise plain proceedings in committee were broken by a sharp, short battle over the clause forbidding companies, not incorporated for political purposes, to contribute to campaign funds.

The strings were many, seven thousand in all, of those who had been born of parents of two years old. They are the poorest English stock, and while they are being sent to Canada primarily for breeding purposes it is anticipated of some of them will be raced around the western Canada fair circuits this year.

Mr. Maharg, Maple Creek, led with a demand if it meant that groups of individuals could band themselves together to assist in an election campaign.

"It is the same," the solicitor-general agreed.

"I think that is the practical effect."

Mr. Maharg was again on his feet.

"Then," he exclaimed, "to groups of labor men, retired soldiers, or others who are not in the political party."

Mr. Maharg warmly retorted. And on the suggestion of the solicitor-general the committee proceeded with less contentious clauses of favor of persons born "on the continent of North America."

"Why so?" argued Mr. Jacobs,

"why such provisions would place the talented French woman or Belgian, at a disadvantage as compared with the full-blooded negro of San Domingo, the daughter of the Mexican, and greater and the mulatto of Germany?"

"If the late Duchess of Connaught were alive," Mr. Jacobs scoffingly continued,

"she would have been a member of the house of commons, and that he had been politically benefited in Germany from a vigorous policy toward England."

"Such a bill," he said, "was worthy of Mexico."

On the other hand, Mr. Foster, East York, took a stand which is understood to find considerable favor among the supporters of the franchise.

Mr. Foster would have the bill go as it is, as they would disfranchise slackers, aliens and deserters.

THAT MARRIAGE LICENSE !

NEARING AN ABYSS

An increase has been announced in the price of marriage licenses, the Alberta government having placed the fee at $0.09. This is an appalling state of affairs, and is certainly a retrograde step, more especially at this time with the high cost of living, and in a country where the winters are long, cold and dreary. Never before in my heart never seen, and as the saying goes, what is worth having is worth paying for—surely a wife. But why stop at the marriage license? The government should have gone the whole hog and debarred all women who cannot adapt themselves to housekeeping and good mothers from securing a license at any price. Six dollars for a marriage license! Look out for a glut in the market, and of course a serious falling off in production. That being the case, what has possessed our legislators? The whole lot should quit right now—give place to the farmers, or to the women. The next thing and the present will be increasing his fees. We always see are approaching.

The community was shocked on Thursday morning, March 14, when the news spread that Edward Magadan had passed away after a very brief illness, at his home in Asker. Teach the Children to Save Habits are acquired early in life. Children, who retain the value of money and the habit of saving, grow into good men and capable women.

The easiest way to teach children to save, is to start a Savings Account for each child ($1.00 each is sufficient). After a child has saved another dollar to make an additional deposit, he or she will have a better appreciation of just what a dollar stands for, and how much work and self-denial it represents.

Buckhorn

Mr H. Ozier entertained a number of people on his birthday, Sunday, March 21st, and a very pleasant time was spent.

Mr and Mrs E. H. Rose, of Brandon, the new owners of the J. Eley farm, arrived in our midst this week. We extend to them a hearty welcome, and may their stay with us be both long and prosperous.

Quite a crowd of Crystal Springs ratepayers and Buckhorn boys turned out on Saturday evening for the school dance. The boys were invited to the schoolhouse doors. Well done, boys, this does you credit and shows the right spirit.

The buzz saw has been busy in this vicinity the past week, and many large piles of wood are to be seen.

Mr and Mrs Joe Eley, of Brandon, are visiting with old friends for a few days.

The basket social on Friday evening was well attended, and everyone reported having had a good time. The proceeds amounted to $65.50, which will be spent on an organ and other items to complete the school building. We wish to thank our Lochinvar and Monte Vista friends for their kind support.

We regret to hear that we are about to lose another of our neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. MacGregor, who are moving to Embden this spring.

Mr and Mrs. E. Rose were visitors at A. Davidson's Saturday evening.

Water Glen

March 23

Mr and Mrs J. Carlson left for Washington last week where they intend to make their future home. They have made many friends in Water Glen, who are sorry to see them leave.

Mr Nickelson and family spent Sunday a afternoon at the Hesland home.

Mr and Mrs C. Bloomquist moved down to their farm near Hesland, and Edward, after a relapse, pneumonia set in and nothing could be done to save him.

Jack Albers was a business visitor in Calgary last week.

K. Haugland brought out his Ferguson tractor last Saturday. This is the fourth tractor to come to Water Glen. It shows that the farmers on not inclined to let go.

Bill Atcheson came home yesterday evening. He has been a teaching Motor School in Calgary for two months.
